

Natural law is that part of eternal law which resides in human nature. Natural law places humanity at one with our animal origins and our roots in the planet as well as with the Image of God. According to St. Thomas, Natural Law is a subdivision of the Eternal Law which is God's will for governing the universe. Natural Law has three ultimate basic dimensions:

A. "Do good and avoid evil."

B. The Truism Precepts of:

1. To persevere one's own being, i.e., conserve one's own life ("Agency" - to conflate one's own existence with affirmation to learn authentically from genuine authority).
2. To accept and exercise biological functions ("Contingency" - to confront all including reality with self-criticism).
3. To seek transcendentals according to ascending reason - to seek truth, oneness, good and beauty by virtuous living and following the Ten Commandments ("Strategy" - to consecrate one's self with liberty and Grace).

C. Human laws which aim at prescribing particular acts which Natural Law imposes for the Common Good. These basically are precepts bridging the gap between deeds and A and B.

Natural Law relates to one basic question: As a person, are you entropy or anti-entropy? Transcendental, yes or no? Love, yes or no?
